Stanford Exploration Project, Report 61, January 13, 1998, pages 1–124

X3D: extensible, interactive three dimensional geophysical data visualization

Rick Ottolini[1]

keywords: interactive, radial, three-dimensional, visualization, graphics, automata

ABSTRACT

New three dimensional geophysical visualizations include radial trace sheets and 3-D cellular automata fluid flow. These plus earlier visualizations are implemented on top of an extensible, interactive, portable three dimensional graphics library called X3D.

[1]email: not available